NATIONAL GUARD OF STATE OF UTAH

Adjutant-General E. A. Wedgwood Submits Annual Report to Governor Cutler.

RECOMMENDS ARMORY AT A COST OF $85,000

Also Says the State Law Should Be Amended to Conform to Law of the Land.

Adjutant-General E. A. Wedgwood, in his biennial report on the national guard of the state, handed to Governor John C. Cutler Monday, classes the state military law as obsolete, says the judge advocate general of the United States has declared that it doesn't conform to the recent Dick bill, pleads for the betterment of the national guard of Utah and submits plans for a new state armory to be established in Salt Lake

The adjutant general wields the big stick of a foreign war menace in support of his recommendations for the betterment of the state guard and the building of a state armory. The policy of the country is against maintaining a large standing army, he says, therefore it follows that the respective states must maintain their proportion of efficient militia. To do this the respective organizations of the national guard must have suitable armories for dill, instruction, care and storage of arms and other equipment.

In support of placing the state armory here, General Wedgwood says that as Salt Lake City is the center of the state's population a large part of the national guard will be drawn therefrom, and headquarters will remain here in the future as in the past. Up to this time the state has rented any hall with connecting rooms that was available regardless of the filters of the place.

Avenuery Porced to Move.

Armory Forced to Move.

The armory has been forced to move not fewer than five times. Rent also has materially increased, and General Wedgwood recommends that enough money he borrowed from the state land money he borrowed from the state land hoard to build an armory at a cost of something like $85,000. There is now $24,000 in the military fund that could be used for this purpose, if necessary. The armory could be built, however, without additional cost to the state. The annual rental of the local armory amounts to $4320. This sum would pay the annual 5 per cent interest on the $85,000 it is proposed to borrow from the state land board to build the armory. Then a sinking fund could be provided to pay the debt off gradually. General Wedgwood's plans contemplate the crection of an armory of sufficient capacity to house eight companies, contain a drill hall, battery gun room, storage and wagon rooms, post panies, contain a drill hall, battery gun room, storage and wagon rooms, post quartermaster and ordnance store rooms, repair shop, kitchen and furnace room. This building as contemplated would be set back fifty feet to give room for an administration building, containing the headquarters of the adjutant general, the armory custodian, the first infantry, a gymnasium and club room. From 500 to 1000 men could be quartered in such an armory, it is estimated. On the second floor would be a drill hall 100 by 150 feet inside dimensions and four company rooms. The floor space of the drill hall and gallery covers 16,000 square feet and would seat about about 3000 persons. On the third floor would be four company rooms.

State Militia Law.

In regard to the present state militia law, General Wedgwood says that the organization of the militia under it does not conform to the organization of does not conform to the organization of the regular army and it is necessary that the law be amended for the state to participate in the appropriation of congress, for the benefit of the militia, from which arms, equipments and uni-forms are provided and certain ex-penses for target practice and encamp-ments paid. General Wedgwood has prepared a revision of the law, a copy of which he submitted to the governor with his report and another cony of which he has sent to the United States war department for approval.

which he has sent to the United States war department for approval.

General Wedgwood says that the membership of the guard for 1908 is more substantial than it was in 1907. The total strength of the guard, as shown by the last report this month, was as follows:

Headquarters F. and S., First infantry, Salt Lake City, 17; band, Frist infantry, Salt Lake City, 19; company A, Neph, 22; company B, Ogden, 36; company C, Salt Lake, 43; company D, Meunt Pleasant, 44; company E, Richfield, 34; company F, Manti, 42; company H, Salt Lake, 37; First battery F. A., Salt Lake, 54; signal corps, Salt Lake, 20; hospital corps, Salt Lake, 16; total, 384.

The needs of the guard for 1909 and total, 384.

The needs of the guard for 1909 and 1910 are placed at $55,800. General Wedgwood also recommends that the salaries of the regimental adjutant and the regimental sergeant major be placed at $100 a year, and of the first sergeants at $40. This would involve the payment of only about $4000 a year, he says.

The organization showing the highest percentage in attendance to duties, drill and the like for the last year was the signal corps of this city, with $1.50 per cent; the band was second with $0.50 per cent.

The crusade against poll tax delinquents has begun. City Attorney E. A. Rogers a day or so ago issued complaints against two delinquents in the civil division of the city court, and Monday issued three more complaints in all, while fifty other delinquents are being searched for with warrants of arrest. This comes as a result of an appropriation of $160 by the City Council to prosecute the delinquents.

What will be done with her is a question which bids fair to being a puzzler. The woman in question is Ella Dixon, who has run a hard race with liquor, until the latter has won to such an extent that she should be in a hospital instead of a jall.

Several works ago Mrs. Dixon was ar-

Several weeks ago Mrs. Dixon was arrested for drunkenness, and at that time an attempt was made to have her taken to the county infirmary, but the county officials refused to act. Last Saturday she departed from the jail without giving notice of her leaving, and Matron Gifford and the police officials gave a sigh of relief, hoping that the woman had departed for good. But no such luck. Early Monday morning, Ellen appeared again in the jail corridors, and refused he leave.

The woman was locked up, but the police will endeavor to have her cared for by the proper authorities.

KICK IS REGISTERED ON CLERK'S METHODS

The regular New York Bowery manner of seiling a suit of clothes is set forth in a complaint against John Sheffleld, a clerk at the "Dubel" bankruptcy sale, sworn to by W. H. Emery. The complainant alleges that he entered the store, in which Sheffleld is clerk, and while looking at some clothes held a $20 bill in his hand. Emery says the clerk picked out a suit and handed it to him and snatched the bill from his hand and registered it in the cash register. Emery protested, but the clerk claimed the sale was made and no goods were taken back or money refunded.

Emery believes differently, and the complaint was sworn out. Sheffleld was arrested late Monday afternoon by Sergeant Johnson, and released from custedy after furnishing a $100 bond.

Young Pintro is seeking to set the will aside and recover part of the Pintro estate. It is denied by Mrs. Pintro that he is the son of Pintro. IN TARIFF REVISION

Will Be One of the First Countries to Take Advantage of Our New Schedule.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 28 .- There are indications that Germany will be among the first European countries to seek advantage of an arrangement with Ameri ca to secure minimum tariff rates under the terms of the new tariff net which is expected to be passed at the special session of congress, to follow close upon the adjournment of the present regular session, March 4th next.

Count Von Bernsdorff, the newly arrived German embassador, who arranged today with Secretary Root for his presentation next Wednesday to President Roosevelt as embassador from Germany, succeeding the late Baron President Roosevelt as embassador from Germany, succeeding the late Baron Speek Von Sternburg, is believed to have been thoroughly equipped by consultation with the German foreign office and custom officials before his departure from Germany, to undertake this task. Indications are that the new tariff act will be framed to take effect immediately upon its approval by the president. Therefore, in order to secure whatever advantages may be expected to follow the application of minimum and maximum rates on exports to the United States, it will be necessary for the foreign embassadors and ministers resited States, it will be necessary for the foreign embassadors and ministers resident in Washington to have arranged in advance of that date new treaty relations with this government. In the case of some European countries a disposition has been shown to forestall action by the American Congress and guard their own export trade with America by considerably increasing their existing tariff rates, with the design of securing the basis of new arrangements with America without sacrificing to any considerable extent the protection which they now enjoy against competition with American exports.

So far as is known here, this is not yet true of Germany, and with this element of good faith in his overtures, the German embassador is likely to meet with a cordial reception at the state description.
